

Easter Morning

The moon, a quarter high in the eastern sky, is turning into fullness:
— yellow orange — encircled by a ring of blue crystalline diamonds which feel like the moon's own silent sadness reaching out to us.

In an ancient text it is written that there is a cave nearby, blocked by a mountainous stone,
which holds the deepest secrets of love.

One night, crystalline blue, the moonlight almost reached the stone.

It is also said that at one time the stone rolled by itself and reached out to the moon.

Yes. Truly.
